Establishment of a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the three profiling units of the FBI to serve as the university research center for the development of new research protocols and studies related to the areas of serial murder, child abduction and murder, and international terrorism.

Risk Factors for Sexual Vulnerability and Violence in Prisons (2004-2007). A grant awarded by the National Institute of Justice to Warren, Loper and Jackson to examine the risk makers for sexual violence that occurs in both male and female prisons and within both state and federal institutions. The goal was to create a risk classification for use in inmate identification and effective programming. ($405,000.00).

The Mental Health Needs of Juvenile Offenders (2001-2003). A VDCSJ grant awarded to Warren to develop a web-based CD ROM tutorial for education of non-clinicians on various aspects of mental health in juveniles; to review case and constitutional law concerning the provision of mental health services to juveniles in confinement; and to explore the correlates and effect of violence perpetrated by youth in situations of confinement ($223,000.00).

Restoration of Incompetent Juveniles (1999-2000). A combined grant awarded to Donahue of Virginia Commonwealth University and Warren of the University of Virginia by the Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services and the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services to plan and begin development of a multi-media video for use in restoring juveniles found incompetent to stand trial ($178,000.00).

CURRICULUM VITAEJANET I. WARREN

Juvenile Forensic Evaluation and Training: The Creation of a Juvenile Forensic Service Delivery System (1999). A contract awarded to the Institute of Law, Psychiatry and Public Policy by the Virginia Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services to develop juvenile training programs in forensic evaluation of adjudicative competence and sanity, risk assessment, and restoration processes throughout the Commonwealth of Virginia and as a model system for use in other states ($103,495.00).

Baseline Psychopathology in a Woman's Prison: Its Impact of Institutional Adjustment, Rehabilitative Efficacy and Release Decision-Making (1998-2000). A grant awarded by the National Institute of Justice to Warren, Colley and Bales to examine baseline psychopathology in a woman's prison population and to assess the presentation of Cluster B psychopathology in women and the impact of these types of personality disorders on their functioning within the institution and upon their return to the community ($148,457.00).

The Virginia Institute of Justice Information Systems (1998-1999). A grant awarded by the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services to Brown and Warren to establish, at the University of Virginia, a technology center designed to provide consultation to police departments across Virginia on the design and implementation of regional crime analysis capabilities ($202,000.00).

Adjudicative Competence in Juvenile Defendants (1997-1999). A grant awarded to Reppucci and Warren by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. The project examined the adjudication competence and developmental maturity of juveniles under the age of eighteen years and attempted to discern the interaction between age, intelligence, developmental maturity and psychopathology as it impacts on adjudicative competence of juveniles who have been adjudicated delinquent by the courts and juveniles who are currently psychiatrically hospitalized ($99,911.00).

Community Policing: A Policy/ Academic Partnership for Evaluation and Research (1996-1999). A grant awarded in 1996 to Warren and Brown by the National Institute of Justice. The project was designed to: (1) prepare a research agenda based on current community crime issues which are identified by the three police departments; (2) to train police officers to use the computer system for crime analysis; (3) to evaluate the effectiveness of using computer assisted crime analysis for Areal life@ police work; and (4) to prepare a joint research project targeting workplace violence ($128,739.00).

Campus and Workplace Violence: A Crime Prevention Perspective (1994-1998). A grant awarded to Warren and Brown in 1993 by the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services. The project was designed to: (1) develop a shared information and regional crime analysis network for the local, community and university police; and (2) examine the interpersonal, spatial and temporal characteristics of campus, hospital and workplace crime ($437,457.00).

Development and Training in Mental Health Law and the Assessment of Serious Juvenile Offenders (1995-1998). A grant awarded to Warren in 1994 by the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services. The project was designed to identify and help resolve ambiguities in law, policy, planning and practice relating to mental health issues in juvenile court adjudication, particularly in connection with the transfer of juveniles to adult court; and train clinicians and probation officers to provide informed, relevant and standardized evaluations/assessments to the juvenile court regarding these legal criteria and clinical issues ($318,432.00).

Mental Health Screening in Detention (1996). A contract awarded to Warren and Reppucci in 1996 to examine mental health treatment and referrals in Virginia's 19 detention centers and to develop a screening instrument for use in the assessment process ($13,720.00).

CURRICULUM VITAEJANET I. WARREN

The Geographical and Temporal Sequencing of Serial Rape (1992-1994). A National Institute of Justice grant awarded to the FBI in collaboration with the University of Virginia in 1992, and conducted by Warren, Reboussin, and Hazelwood. The project was designed to examine the crime scene characteristics of serial rapists and explore the predictive potential of these behaviors in determining the geographical patterning of the offenses as it relates to the location of the offender's residence ($128,735.00).

Instrumental and Reactive Aggression (1992-1993). A Guggenheim grant awarded to Cornell, Hawk, and Warren studied dimensions of violent behavior and the relevance of psychopathy, neurological impairment, anger and impulsivity to different types of violent crime. ($50,000.00)

UNFUNDED RESEARCH

Capital Sentencing Mitigation (1993-1995). A review of 55 capital sentencing mitigation evaluations to explore factors presented in mitigation as they related to outcome of the sentencing hearing conducted by Warren based upon her evaluation of these defendants. Historical, diagnostic, and narrative factors were examined.

Campus Violence: The University of Virginia (1990-1992). An in-depth analysis of all incidents of interpersonal violence involving University students, faculty, and staff, on campus and off, over a three-year period, conducted by Warren as part of her involvement in the University of Virginia's Council on Community. The project developed a geographical display system that informs the University of patterns of crime on an ongoing basis.

Dispositional Outcome Study (1993). This project analyzed the dispositional outcome of cases referred for forensic evaluation, and assessed the impact of psychiatric diagnoses on the legal outcome of the case.

Serial Rape (1986-1990). This project conducted through the FBI focused on an in-depth study of 41 serial rapists, all of whom were responsible for at least 10 rapes prior to their apprehension. It examined the impact of the rapist's developmental history on his offense behavior; the nature of the rapist's offense behavior across the first, middle and last offense; and the use of behavioral scales in predicting developments in a single offender's rape behavior. (funded by OJJDP to the FBI)

Mentally Disordered Offenders in Pursuit of Celebrities and Politicians (1986-1988). National Institute of Justice grant awarded to P.E. Dietz. Warren served as clinical case reviewer. The project studied threatening communications sent to celebrities and politicians and explored factors that might be predictive of dangerous behavior toward a public figure following a pre-approach communication.

Forensic Information Management System (1987-1999). Maintenance of the FEIS statewide, an information management system that tracks all court-ordered forensic evaluations conducted throughout Virginia. The system is maintained under contract by the Virginia Department of Mental Health, Mental Retardation, and Substance Abuse and the Office of the Attorney General.

Evaluation of Competency to Stand Trial and Sanity at the Time of the Offense (2013- 2018). Analyses of 8,130 evaluations of competency to stand trial and 5,125 evaluations of sanity at the time of the offense considering issues pertinent to opinion formation for the courts.
